Re: M&A; Data Analytics Senior Consultant

Deloitte – Strategy, Growth & Transformation

My name is Sikai Yang—a trilingual CPA and Business Analytics candidate graduating from the University of Florida in December 2026. Having spent more than four years at Deloitte and BDO analyzing financial statements, validating large-volume transactional datasets, and building Python-based analytics models, I am thrilled to apply for the M&A; Data Analytics Senior Consultant role on Deloitte's Strategy, Growth & Transformation team.

As Data Science Team Lead on a Bank of America practicum, I managed approximately 10 GB of customer and transactional data, normalizing and validating datasets before building anomaly-detection models—SARIMA, regression, and Nelson Rules—to test operational hypotheses across 3,000+ financial centers. I designed dashboards that communicated deal-level insights and root-cause findings to senior leadership, mirroring exactly the hypothesis-driven analytics and stakeholder storytelling at the core of M&A; due diligence.

My two-year tenure as a Semi-Senior External Auditor at Deloitte equipped me with deep expertise in financial-cycle analysis across revenue, cash, receivables, and fixed assets for clients exceeding $10M in annual revenue. I led Tier-3 audit engagements end-to-end—risk assessment, materiality, valuation testing—and analyzed investment portfolios including stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. This foundation in GAAP, IFRS, and transaction-level data review translates directly to validating and stress-testing financial records in fast-paced M&A; environments.

I bring proven experience with the full analytics stack required for this role: SQL and Python for data manipulation and ETL, Power BI and Tableau for visualization, and Snowflake and AWS for cloud-based data extraction. I have collaborated with C-suite and private equity clients throughout my career, and I thrive under the fast-moving, deadline-driven conditions that define transaction work.

Deloitte's unmatched M&A; advisory platform and its culture of innovation and global collaboration are what draw me back to the firm. I am eager to contribute my data analytics expertise and financial background to help Deloitte clients make confident investment decisions. Thank you for considering my application—I look forward to the conversation.

Sincerely,

Sikai Yang
